Facebook firings a first

► British Columbia Labour Relations Board upholds dismissal of two workers over Facebook slugging of employer ► Believed to be first such case in Canada

Add Canada to the list of places where Facebook can be hazardous to your employment status.

Two workers at a B.C. car dealership were sacked for what they wrote about their employer and their managers on Facebook. And the B.C. Labour Relations Board has upheld their dismissal.

The incident, which occurred in Pitt Meadows just west of Vancouver, is believed to be the first such case in Canada.

"It's the first Facebook case that has made it to hearing at least," said Donald Richards, the lawyer who handled it for the employer, but he added there are likely plenty more to come.

"I think I was fortunate in the sense that I had pretty extreme facts."

In this case, the two employees left few defamatory stones unturned. One of them slugged their employer, accusing the business of being crooked, accused managers of performing homosexual acts together and raved about committing acts of violence against them. THE GAZETTE PRESS
